The holidays are just around the corner. How, you wonder, are we going to tie those into November Patch Tuesday? Through tradition, of course! Because what are the holidays without that treasured recipe you replicate line by line each year? And what is security without steadfast adherence to the list of controls you've put in place? The KRACK vulnerability is another in this year's endless litany of reminders that keeping up with software updates is critical. Be sure you've pushed out the October OS updates—and don't let the tradition slip this month either, as there are quite a few Critical security vulnerabilities to patch.
